TAX COMMISSION EXPENSES.

The Attorney-General Says the Law Provides Amply for Them.

The Tax Commissioners asked the Attorney-general what, if any, authority they possessed to pay the cost of extra clerical service; the fees of county sheriffs in performing service required of them by the State Board of Tax Commissioners, and other incidental expenses necessarily attaching to a proper performance of their official duties. The Attorney-general yesterday replied as follows: It was not expected that a board of such great and direct importance to the people should perform its multifarious duties without incurring some expense in such labors. The proper clerical force requisite to the keeping of an accurate record of the board's proceedings is contemplated by the law, which enjoins upon them its preservation. The service of notices over the State by the sheriffs of the several counties, is absolutely necessary to an intelligent and just enforcement of the law. These persons are made subject to the orders of the local board for such purposes. For so doing they are entitled to tax fees precisely as they are empowered to do for similar service in court matters. Payment for these and other matters incident to a full discharge of the duties of the board is amply provided for in Section 129 of the tax law, which provides that all necessary costs and expenses of said board shall be paid out of the State treasary on warrants of the Auditor on being duly certified. A careful schedule of all the expenses of the board should be prepared and its accuracy certified to by the State board, and upon this authority the Auditor should issue his separate warrants in favor of the persons entitled to the several sums due, as set forth, which should be paid out of and charged against the general fund not otherwise appropriated. XEW side-boards at Wm. L. Elder's. LOOK AT IT

Large Tax-Payers Express Themselves Regarding the State Board's Action.

Refusal to Do Justice to Indianapolis Criticised as It Deserves-The City Carrying Even More of the Burden than Usual.

The refusal of a majority of the State Board of Tax Commissioners to grant the petition of the Commercial Club, which asked a reduction of 10 per cent. in this city's assessment, met with much comment yesterday. Charles E. Coffin was disposed to regard himself as a prophet when asked his opinion of the board's action. "When the subject of taxation under the new law was first talked of," said Mr. Coffin, "you had a series of interviews in the Journal. I then said the stand taken by the taxing officers would cause us to pay hereafter, as we have always done, about 25 per cent. more of State taxes than this city should pay. Under this assessment our total valuation will come up to nearly one hundred millions. The refusal of the commissioners to make the reduction is certainly unjust to this city and county. We started out to obey the law and are to be made to suffer for it. Indianapolis will pay 25 per cent. more taxes into the State treasury than it should—that is, relatively above what other cities pay. Under the old assessment we paid into the State about $70,000; now we will pay about $180,000. The effect of this high valuation in real estate is to drive away investors. I could name several customers, non-residents, who would have come here, but who now positively refuse to make investments under the present conditions. The refusal of the Tax Commissioners to do us justice will do this city a great deal of harm. "I think," said Charles F. Sayles, "this action of the commissioners will affect the sale of real estate unfavorably."

"We believed," said a member of the firm of John S. Spann & Co., "up to this time in making an effort to have the valuation reduced, but, having failed to do so, we do not think it policy to discuss the matter. It is a repetition of the conduct of the News in this natural-gas business. That paper undertook to educate the people to an advance in gas rates. The effect has been injurious to Indianapolis in particular and to the State generally. Continued discussion on the subject will only advertise us as an overtaxed city and do us no good."

"The board has done us an injury," said Henry Coe. "It was an outrage, and you may add the necessary adjectives as trim-may add the necessary adjectives as trimmings."

"Indianapolis has always paid more than her share of State taxes," was the remark of Moses G. McLaid. "The proportion this time will be outrageously unjust. The Commercial Club asked a reduction of 10 per cent. That was modest. A reduction of 20 per cent. would have been nearer the mark."

mark."

"My opinion from the start has been that Indianapolis and Marion county have been taxed too high; that is in comparison with other counties and cities in the State," said Herman Lieber. "I thought the reduction asked for was moderate and fair."

"The fellows in the country have got us again," remarked M. O'Connor. "They are against us every time. Indianapolis has for many years been paying far beyond her share of State taxes. We will be hurt. If it were not for the good crops we would be badly hurt."

"These assessors." said D. P. Erwin, "either

"These assessors," said D. P. Erwin, "either through an excess of patriotism or from some kind of spite work, have managed to make an excessively high assessment. The effect will be seen after the first levy is made and the first payment of taxes called for. This is going to add very materially to the cost of doing business and to the cost of holding unproductive real estate."

"I do not think Indianapolis should pay more than her just share of taxes," said George G. Tanner. "The object of the commission was to equalize taxation throughout the State. Had this been done Indianapolis would not be a sufferer."

"Mr. Tanner's sentiments are mine," was the observation of George W. Johnston, who was present. "Indianapolis has always paid more than her share of the State taxes."

"Indianavolis has never received fair treatment in the matter of State taxes," said Wright Hadley.

VIEWS OF WILLIAM H. ENGLISH. Mr. English said he had been a close observer of tax laws and taxation since he was in the Legislature many years ago and originated some reforms upon the subject that are now well established. "It is much easier," said he, "to formulate a proper tax law than it is to execute it justly and uniformly throughout the State.

To do the latter is exceedingly difficult, if not impossible, if we are to judge by the present and the past. Take Indianapolis for an example; there has not been a time in the last thirty years that she has not paid largely more than her just proportion of the taxes of the State. This grew out of a variety of reasons more than I can enumerate. There has always been a greater disposition here to boom the price of real estate and inflate values than there has been in the rural districts and smaller has been in the rural districts and smaller cities and towns. Then there is an army of contractors, speculators, rings and cliques about the capital city of the State who about the capital city of the State who pay little or no taxes themselves, but fatten on the taxes paid by others, and are always urging high valuations for taxable purposes and high rates so as to get more local taxes, out of which they expect to derive benefit for themselves or friends. They are regarded by the tax-payers a good deal as Artemus Ward was by his wife's relations. Then to hear some of them talk, one would think they possessed about all the public spirit there is lying around loose in the city. lying around loose in the city.
The result of it all is that Indianapolis has paid, and is likely to continue to pay, more than her just proportion of the taxes of the State. Of course the late appraisement was made under the new law, and now even honesty comes in to add to the burden of Indianapolis tax-payers. Our assessor undoubtedly appraised Indianapolis property at what he honestly believed was its full value, as the law required, but it was on the high inflated and imaginary idea of values, which prevails here greater than elsewhere, and there is no question whatever but the valuation of Indianapolis is higher, when compared with valuations elsewhere in the State, than it ought to be. I think the Board of Tax Commissioners have labored with untiring zeal for the public good, and are entitled to great credit, but it is a subject of regret that they let the plea of lack of time, or any other light matter, stand in the way of righting so manifest an injustice. The public certainly have the idea that the board was created mainly for the purpose of equalizing valuations, which surely carries with it the right to add in one place or reduce in another so as to equalize the tax burden on all local taxation in proportion to what had been the increased valuation under the new law. Tax-payers generally expect this to be done, but still they keep a watchful eye upon the men in authority, and will hold them responsible if it is not done. The Democratic party of the city, he said, was definitely pledged in favor of such reduction by the action of its late city convention. The City Tax Levy. Inasmuch as the State Board of Tax Commissioners has finished with the Indianapolis assessment, Controller Woollen is now

all. The highest law, the Constitution, says, 'taxation shall be equal and uniform throughout the State.'"
Mr. English went on to say that if Indianapolis could not be relieved from excessive valuation, then there was a stronger rea-son than ever for a reduction of the rate of in shape to go ahead and make up his estimates for the fiscal year, and make his recommendation as to what the city tax levy shall be. The city officials were notified yesterday that they would be given exact figures on this assessment this morning, and therefore a special meeting of the Council has been called for to night. With the total assessment of the city at $100,000,-000 in round figures, the levy can be fixed as low as 60 or 65 cents, and still give the city a much larger income than it has ever received before. The county auditor's force have their figures in such shape that when they hear from the State board this morning they can figure out the city's portion of the as-said last night that he thought $100,000,000 a fair rough estimate for the city, while other estimates varied from that to 896-

THE COMMITTEES IN SESSION.

The Indiana World's Fair Commissioners Actively at Work-Bids for the Building.

Yesterday afternoon the several committees, eight in number, of the State Board of World's Fair Commissioners met in various rooms in the State-house, each to consider matters pertaining to the departments assigned them. These committees will report to the board at 9 o'clock this morning. Last evening the eight plans submitted for the Indiana building to be erected at the Columbian exhibition were examined by the executive committee. These plans were submitted by the following architects: J. W. Gaddis, Vincennes; W. Scott Moore, Indianapolis; D. A. Bohlen & Son, Indianapolis; Thomas A. Winterrowd, Indianapolis; Wing & Mahurin, Ft. Wayne; Williams & Otter, Dayton, O.; T. J. Schlotter, Evansville; Henry Ives Cobb, Chicago. The matter of the award will probably be made public to-day. All the architects have been public to-day. All the architects have been present and explained their plans except those from Dayton, Evansville and Chicago. The latter, however, had sent in full descriptions, and these were read.

An executive commissioner for the fair will probably be chosen to-day. There are several candidates, among whom are Edward Hawkins, of this city; Calvin Fletcher, of Spencer; D. H. Fenton, of Hammond, and B. F. Havens, of Terre Haute. The person chosen, it is believed, will be a Democrat, and the contest is said to be between ocrat, and the contest is said to be between Mr. Hawkins and Mr. Havens, with chances in favor of the latter. Mr. Havens is a lawyer and has served as Mayor of Terre Haute. Mr. Hawkins has also enjoyed office, his last service having been as United States Marshal of Indiana under President Cleveland. E. B. Martindale of the national commission Clemeters. dale, of the national commission, Clem Studebaker and others favor postponing this appointment for the reason that it will be some time before the executive commissioner can begin active work, and some salary may be saved to the State if the apactually needed.

The name of Mrs. Virginia C. Meredith, of Cambridge City, is put forward for chief of the department of live tock at the world's fair. As she is one of the largest and most successful live-stock-breeders and dealers in Indiana, she will fill the place if chosen, as she is thoroughly educated to the business. Mrs. S. S. Howell, of the Indiana board of managers, is urging the adoption of her plan for raising a fund for the educational exhibit. She estimates that if each pupil gives 5 cents and each teacher 10 cents, there being 500,000 of the former and 15,000 of the latter, $26,000 would be secured. The agricultural committee is devising a plan by which the State can be divided into sections, and the county boards of each section co-operate with the commission in arranging a collection for the world's fair.

STILL WAITING FOR THAT BRIDGE.

First Warders Disguted at the Delay in Getting One Over Pogue's Run.

The casual mentioning of the names of the street commissioners in the First ward, in the neighborhood of Pogue's run and Orchard avenue, will arouse a large volume of negative enthusiasm. This is the result of leaving the citizens in that region without a bridge over the creek on the main thoroughfare leading to Brightwood. There stands a thirty-thousand-dollar schoolhouse on one side of the creek and a large body of patrons living on the other side are unable to get their children to school without sending them three-fourths of a mile out of the way to the bridge, either up or down the creek. The property-holders have just petitioned the board for a cheap foot-bridge above Orchard avenue, having lost all hopes of ever seeing the bridge at the latter point replaced. It has been down for eighteen months, and notwithstanding the city engineer long since made his plans for a bridge, only the abutments have been built. Further than that, the commissioners have not gone. Both Democrats and Republicans living in the vicinity are united in the loud disapproval of the commissioners' conduct. At one time, it is said, the bridge might have been fitted up for a paltry $400. Since then, either with or without the consent of the board, a man has come with a wagon and carted off a few tons of iron, and now the work cannot be done for less than $800. Those who have petitioned for the foot-bridge claim to have been willing to "chip in" and build the bridge long since, providing the money subscribed should be taken from their taxes, but the board would not listen to it. School has now opened, and all they ask is a foot-bridge for the little ones to use. At almost any hour of the day one may see women and children half waiking, half sliding down one side of the bank at Orchard avenue, balancing on a foot-board across the water and then scaling the opposite bank. house on one side of the creek and a large nue, balancing on a foot-board across the water and then scaling the opposite bank. The street at both approaches is well graded and the abutments stand waiting, but the bridge never comes. There is nothing to prevent a runaway animal from load of people, and several such accidents, it is claimed, have been only narrowly averted.

Warrants for State Institutions.

The Auditor of State issued warrants yesterday for $3,084.39, the August main tenance of the Deaf and Dumb Institute; $2,986 for bath-rooms, $864.15 for boilers and boiler-houses, $732.25 for electric-light plant, $407 for sewers, $376.43 for current expenses and repairs and $53 for industries at the same institution. Warrants were also issued for the August maintenance of the Central Hospital for Insane, amounting to $19,373.07 and for other expenses of the same institution as follows: Clothing, $1,-228.13; tunnel, $2,093.60; repairs, $761.01, and transfer of patients, $45.15.

It Won't Be Generally Read. The stenographic report of the Tax Commission's proceedings was submitted to that body yesterday by Messrs. Johnson and Metcalf, who did the work. It is nicely gotten up and consists of 1,100 typewritten pages and the Russia-leather cover contains in gilt letters the names of the commissioners and that of the secretary.

Monument Competition.

The monument commissioners have decided to offer two prizes of $500 each for the first and second best models of the side groups, "War" and "Peace." In addition, they will employ six artists at $500 each to make models for the groups. These six artists are at liberty to enter the competition, which is open to the world.

Sentences Commuted.

The Governor yesterday commuted the sentences of Charles Kelly, aged eighteen, and Clarence Davison, aged sixteen, from the penitentiary to the Reform School. The boys were convicted of petit larceny in the Putnam Circuit Court, and sentenced to one year in prison.

Amusements. The strong interest and stirring action of the new play, "Abraham Lincoln," now on at the Grand, have been heightened by the changes that have been made in the piece since its first production. And yet others are to come. It is hoped to be able to put on the new assassination scene, which, at rehearsal yesterday, was shown to be very strong and picturesque, at the matinee to-morrow. The performance now runs smoothly, and is completed in two hours and a half. There was an increased attendance again last night, and the advance sale for the remaining three performances, to-night, to-morrow matines and to-morrow night, is large. The play is unique and of the highest interest. "Custer" is apparently satisfactory to the patrons of the Park, and there will be performances of it to-day and to-morrow. The attraction announced formext week is the popular Wilbur Opera Company, in a varied repertoire.

Militia Officers Commissioned. The Governor yesterday issued commissions to W. D. Ewing, of Evansville, as colonel of the First Regiment: W. F. Van Arsdel, J. E. Allen and E. T.
